HSBC NextWave: New Connections, New Horizons

Mason Lau

There's this misconception when an entrepreneur decides to break out and do their own thing separate from the family business, it's gone a separate way from the family legacy.

I think what I've recognised for myself in my journey, is because of the teachings and the principles instilled in me by my family.

Having been in environments with other family business backgrounded people has been helpful for me in understanding what kind of path I want to go on.
